

A STRATEGIC PARTNER FOR DEVELOPMENT COOPERATION

ABOUT US

The University of Pavia (UNIPV) is one of the world's oldest academic institutions. Officially established as Universitas Studiorum by Emperor Charles IV in 1361, it remained the only university in Lombardy until the 20th Century.

UNIPV has decades of experience in the promotion of development. In 1987, the university established a Commission for International Cooperation and Development (CICOPS) dedicated to supporting developing countries by means of cooperation projects, research scholarships, trainings, peace dialogues, among other development initiatives.

Moreover, the Department of Economics and Management of the university, located in the ancient Monastery of Saint Felice, is very active in the field of international development, particularly in the areas of teaching, research, students' involvement, and networking.

OUR COMMITMENT TO INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

The Department of Economics and Management (DEM) is committed to the promotion of international Development. For this purpose, it actively supports the following actions:

- Specialized education for development.
- Research for development.
- Organization of seminars about development topics with specialists from NGOs and the private sector.
- Strategic partnerships with NGOs and the private sector for the promotion of joint actions for development.
- Participation in international development projects to address global challenges with partners from the academic sector and the civil society.
- Scholarships for students coming from developing countries.
- Student networks to promote volunteering and international cooperation actions.

THIRD MISSION

The Department participates in the formulation, monitoring and evaluation of development initiatives.

TEACHING ACTIVITIES: THE EDUCATIONAL CHAIN

The value added of our programmes in the field of development is that they are structured as an educational chain which allows students to specialize throughout their academic life.

RESEARCH ACTIVITIES

We are constantly expanding our network to carry out joint research activities in the field of development. Our main areas of interest are the following:

- Development Cooperation
- Sustainable Development
- Food and Nutrition Security
- Development Economics
- Quantitative Methods for Development.

DEM is also part of various international research projects in Sub-Saharan Africa, Latina America, and Asia.

NETWORKING ACTIVITY

The DEM is part of multiple networks for the promotion of development, such as:
